

SUPPORT THE NATIONAL ARMY MUSEUM BY BECOMING A FRIEND

WHAT THIS MEANS

The National Army Museum Te Mata Toa was opened in 1978 and was designed to function as a memorial; to acquire, preserve and display aspects of New Zealand's military history; and to serve as a research and teaching facility. Today the Museum seeks to engage New Zealanders with our soldier's stories, history and the development of our Army. To show how these have shaped our identity as a country and our place in the world, thereby helping create a nation which understands and values its military.

Your membership with the Friends provides an opportunity to support the National Army Museum Te Mata Toa. As a Registered Charitable Trust, we depend on your generosity which helps provide valuable help towards:

- Conservation, preservation and archiving
- Roll of Honour database and memorial services
- Development of new exhibitions
- Acquisition of artefacts
- Education services
- Other projects

As a Friend you'll receive:

- A personalised membership card
- Free admission to the Museum
- Invitations to selected exhibitions / events
- 10% discount on purchases at the Museum's Quartermaster Store
